

3rd Logistics Chain Gathering of Jacobs University Bremen brought together students and companies

Bremen, May 2010

In April 2010, Jacobs University hosted the 3rd Annual Logistics Chain Gathering on campus. Organized by the Logistics Chain, Jacobs University's logistics club, businessmen, executives, students, and faculty from the logistics field came together to discuss current business issues and exchange ideas and visions. dbh Logistics IT AG is involved as sponsor for the event this year.

The Logistics Chain Club of Jacobs University was founded by the pioneers of the logistics major at Jacobs University. The organization offers students a unique opportunity to discuss the dynamics of the logistics world, deliberate over innovative approaches to global supply issues and engage in productive interaction to foster holistic development. Currently, more than 60 International Logistics students from different countries are members the club. In 2009 the club was accepted as Student Group of the Region Weser-Ems of BVL e.V.

"It is important for economy and companies to support logistics students to create the future leaders for logistics", Reimund Ott, CEO dbh Logistics IT AG.

Highlights of this year's get together were the award ceremony and the celebration of the first Jacobs logistics class that is about to graduate on June 4.
